NCC

Description

The Public Comment Draft for the next edition of the National Construction Code is open from 1 May until 1 July 2024.

Content

The National Construction Code (NCC) Public Comment Draft (PCD) is your opportunity to provide feedback on the proposed changes to be made in the next edition of the NCC.

The NCC is updated every 3 years, based on industry and public feedback and policy directions from governments between publishing cycles. In preparation for the next edition of the NCC, the ABCB seeks feedback from the public and industry on the NCC Public Comment Draft.

Submissions provided through the consultation will help inform the final version of the NCC for regulatory consideration. Feedback on the NCC Public Comment Draft must be submitted by 11:59 pm AEST 1 July 2024.

To see the full list of proposed changes and submit your feedback, visit our Consultation Hub.

Why you should provide feedback on the NCC Public Comment Draft

The ABCB is committed to considering the views of relevant and diverse stakeholder groups. Consultation enables the ABCB to increase their understanding of the potential impacts of any changes. Feedback from people with a range of experience and interest areas is necessary to help ensure the changes made support an NCC that is beneficial for all Australians.

New proposals for change

Please note, due to the NCC amendment process, the NCC Public Comment Draft process cannot incorporate new proposals for suggested changes to the NCC. The NCC PCD process can only consider feedback on changes that are already proposed for the next edition of the NCC.

If you have any further feedback or guidance to be considered for future editions of the NCC, please follow the Proposal for Change (PFC) process.
